About

LEEDS BECKETT UNIVERSITY

Leeds Beckett University (LBU), formerly known as Leeds Metropolitan University (LMU), is a public university in Leeds, West Yorkshire, with campuses in the city centre and Headingley. The University's origins dates back to 1824 and with almost 200 years of teaching experience, Leeds Beckett is proud of its history and excited about its future.

Based in the vibrant and cosmopolitan city of Leeds, the UK's largest centre for business and financial services outside of London, the University is one of the most popular universities in the UK. It contributes an estimated £520 million annually to the economy, employs more than 3,000 people and over 28,000 students study a Leeds Beckett University qualification in the UK and overseas.

In 2017, the University was awarded 'Silver' status in the national Teaching Excellence Framework (TEF) and a four-star rating by QS, the international higher education benchmarking agency and reaching the finals in the 2017 Global Teaching Excellence Awards.

The University is proud to be the first university in the UK to hold both Investors in People Gold accreditation and the Customer Service Excellence standard for the whole institution, underlining its commitment to personal development and its dedication to customer satisfaction.
